

The Metropolitan Hotel

Recommended Accommodations for Acclimatization Days

We researched 5 star hotels and have chosen The Metropolitan. It is in one of the most colourful shopping and business districts in Delhi. The streets nearby are filled with street vendors, an experience not to be missed or easily forgotten. The distance to a number of great sights to see is not far. Transport is available, if you are courageous, by bus or underground metro. Our tip though, is to engage a taxi for a whole day so that you can be taken where you want to go, and if you need to keep belongings safe, the taxi driver keeps them safe for you. The cost for such a service is very small, and is a very common way to use taxis.

You might ask 'why a 5 star?'. Delhi-belly is very real and very uncomfortable. International guests are advised to stay in 5 star hotels where the sanitation/hygiene standards are higher for food and for cleaning so that you can reduce the risks. We also wanted a hotel that aligns with really good ecological, social and labour responsibilities/standards/values. This one meets all the criteria and is not too expensive. And we have good friends who recommend this hotel above others.

Booking your room at the Metropolitan is up to you to make your arrangements directly, remembering your departure date from the hotel is July 2nd.

There are many many places in Delhi that tourists like to see. If you do a search to look for things to see and do near the Metropolitan Hotel, you will get a lot of ideas. Birgitt highly recommends that you spend some hours at the Central Cottage Industries Corporation of India Ltd \(cottageemporium.in\). This is a place that brings in art, handcrafts, furnishings, tea etc from all parts of India, giving a shopping experience that is like going all through India in one place, and is a safe way to make your choices.
